THE EMERALD ISLES
OF

IRELAND

The weather here has not been as bad as back in the eastern parts of the U.S. but we have definitely been on the cool side. Summer has left Ireland (if it was ever here this year) and moved into the autumn season. I am happy to say that we did have a handful of good days with lots of sun and small amounts of rain and that allowed us to get a few things done on the outside of our home. We live in a older home and it actually stays cooler inside our home than it does on the outside and it is damp on top of that. They just remodeled our home but I am beginning to believe they did more cosmetic than the needed deep remodel like more insulation.

We have kept a good average for our Bible study and it is such a blessing to have these young adults as students. They just amaze me with their inquisitive minds. Please continue to pray for these four that they continue to be faithful to their studies. One of our young ladies asked about her friends. "They do not worship God but they are good people. Will they go to Heaven?" I showed them what God has to say about good people and heaven, then let them read the answer for their selves. That will stay in their mind much longer than just giving them an answer. Show them the answer and it will stick in their minds.

Mel's View

It is time to turn the heat on for a few hours in the morning and again in the evening. Thankful to have heat just to knock the chill off in the house.

I have taken advantage of the few nice sunny and windy days. But the air and sun is not hot enough this time of the year to dry clothes on the outside line, so will have to use the dryer more. I actually don't mind using our inside drying rack for the light weight clothes. It helps hold down on the high electric cost of utilities here.

You can't buy canned pumpkin here so when I found pumpkins here for one Euro each we bought three. Dan and I always canned our own vegetables when we were in the states so there is no problem here. I am just thankful to have found pumpkins to bake and process for canning. This canned pumpkin should last us over the next two years.

Still working on building relationships here. Please keep praying for the contacts we have made. God is so good. Thank you all for the love, support and most of all we thank you for your prayers.

Love you all, Mel
